MR. LINCOLN'S ESTATE. -The New Yorl Tribune says:

We have hitherto refused to say a word concerning the circumstances in which Mr. Lincoln's death left his family, because we are only asking the American people to pay their righteous debt to their sentinel shot down at his post. But it is not true—far from it—that "the late President left an ample fortune." the contrary, we happen to know that Mr. Lincoln's executor and nearest friend, United States Judge Daniel Davis, of Illinois, after taking an account of the estate, has notified Mrs. Lincoln that she canno afford to keep house on her means, but must board. > DEATH OF MR. ADAM SKELLY,-It is with pain that we are called upon to announce the death of this young man, who expired in this city this morning at half past four o'clock, at the age of twenty-six years and four months. He has resided in Janesville for the past fifteen years, during thirteen of which he has been engaged in the printing business, and most of the time in the Gazette office. Ever upright and honorable, he enjoyed the esteem and good will of the entire community; active and energetic, he entered with vigor into any enterprise which engaged his attention; a capable and faithful workman, he enjoyed in an eminent degree the confidence of his employers and the good will of his associates.

> For many years he has been connected with the fire department of this city, and much of the time has occupied the position of an officer in that organization, being foreman of No. 2 when he died. He has devoted much time to promoting the efficiency of the department, and has ever been foremost in the hour of conflagration in his efforts to save property from the devouring element. His health has been gradually failing for a number of months, and while the sad event of his death has not been unlooked for, the blow falls with painful force. He will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends.

The funeral is to be held to-morrow, the procession moving from the house at 1 o'clock to the Baptis; Church where religions services will be held.

BRADEGRO, June, 1865 Edilors Garette And is Jone here so soon? Surely "Time and tide wait for no man." Here I am reminded of the ancient fool, who drawing forth his dial

Says very windy it is ten o'cleck,

'The first has hour picke after,'
And after one boar mare 'twill be sleven!'
And of from hour to hour we rips and rips,
And then from hour to hour, we rot and rot,
And thereby hange a tate."

Surely this conviction mun dispel the the sluggard's idea of "Yet a little sleep, a little more folding of the bands to sleep," and "Work while the day lasts for the night cometh" should be the motto for

During the last month we lost, by death, a revered old pioneer; called by us all Uncle Scott. He was the head of a numerous family, and settled in this town nineteen years since. He was surrounded by his children and scarcely a household here but claimed some donnection. Death claimed him in a ripe and sanctified old

May produced lew striking changes among us, and June comes in brightly; in fact old Sol is doing his best just now, sending the mercury up to dizzy hights and parboiling us in our own perspiration. Grains and grasses grow finely, but horrors ! how thick the chinch bugs are. Unless we get rain in abundance soon and perhaps if we do-grains will certainly be a failure:

Upon examination, the roots of many wheat plants are found to be completely covered with eggs, and some of the little pin point sized red fellows have commenced depredations. Farmers, as a class, are considered great cases to keep up a continual cry of "wolf" of some kind, but examine the enclosed specimen and become satished

Some of our farmers have been experimenting by rolling or dragging, which results only in a slight disturbance. No permanent good can come from these processes, for they are closely bedded around the root, in some cases four and five inches below the surface. Farmers must not any longer study how to dispose of the bug by direct attack, but adopt immediately some "flank movement" in a different method or style of farming.

During the month we may expect the beer to swarm, the poultry to hatch, strawberries to ripen, and that notorious charncter, the assessor, to come around; and before hoeing, visiting must be done up. This brings to mind an event or two in this line. Some of us were invited to a neighbor's, to visit with some friends from the city. Of course we all went and had a fine opportunity of seeing how people from cities go on expeditions into the country. The Provost Marshal was along to preserve order, the Court's Clerk to keep records of justice; Bro. B- to keep up regular mail communications; the editors to keep the world notified of progress; the insurance agent to. make things all safe; and the Rev. to look after the christian standing of the company; and each was accompanied by his "better half." A general good time was had, amusing in repartee and profitably leavened with good sense. All seemedto enjoy largely the privileges of the oc casion, and when the time came for separating, and the Marshal's call of "come was given, the conclusion was that no better place can be found for the gratification of the inner man, or the satisfaction of all concerned, then Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fowle's, of Bradford.

A few days since, a party from this place visited some of the institutions of Jamesville. At the Institute for the blind, we were kindly received by the teachers, shown over the buildings, given a good opportunity to hear classes recite, and must say that we were pleased with the advancement displayed; showing that an extraordinary amount of patience and perseverance had been exercised, by both teachers and pupils. The little eyeless ones seemed happy and gay, and merrily accosted us without rudeness.

The display of proficiency was without ostentation, and there was an air of cultivation and refinement manifest in every department, that was pleasing to see.

Every effort seems to be put forth for the comfort, happiness and progress of those afflicted ones which does great credit to the superintendent and teachers.

The next visit was to the public schools of the city. Miss Warner was there found, whose excellence as a lady and teacher can be questioned by none. The order and discipline in the school; the accuracy aimed at in getting a knowledge of the different branches, and the general good arrangements of the buildings for the accommodation of schools was very pleasing. But there was not that neatness and genuine refinement that was found at the asylum for the blind. In fact the difference in this respect was so manifest, that we wished, that, if we were to be reeducated, we might first be struck blind. Then came the query after the necessity for this difference. If there is to come so much good to the world or happiness to individuals, from being thus particular with the blind, how much greater good might arise from a similar toning of the education of those who can see. We concluded to let the mothers who do the washing and mending, complain that their boys were sallowed to wade waint deep in a mud hole, and their girls to clamber around in trees, so I will not

Newspapers in New York.

The year 1865 furnishes many changes in the newspapers of this city some of which are of great political significance, while all are of public interest. Most notable of all inthe significant of Bes Wood from the responsible chair of the Daily. News, and the succession of John Mitchell to his place and power. Wood has never ford—the rougish—the merry—the song-written a line for the paper, but his ideas singing—the Ben of mil Bens, was thus written a line for the paper, but his ideas have ruled, and, his suggestions were always the rudder. To Messra. Pray and Palay—the former a veteran actor, the latter a sanguine young Southerner—the edicorial for was given, while Judge McCunn acted as a censor. Mr. Armstrong, formerly of the New York Times, was and is the managing editor." The only change in out of his cheeks every time he spoke, and the paper's permand is the substitution of he had hold of Mark's arm to drag him Mitchell for Wood, Mitchell, however, away. But Mark shook off his hand, and writes, while Wood only inspired. He has already attracted attention by a vigorous protest against the trial of Jeff. Davis, and Mr. Greeley, admitting him as a peer, has opened an argument with him. The Times of yesterday contained a second attack upon him, and it is evident that Mitchell's position will be professionally unpleasant, and possibly personally un-

It is generally understood Wood sank in the neighborhood of $150,000 by his paper proper, which was fully made up by the singular amount of corporation pay furnished without stint and without fairness. Inder the new regime the politics of the News will be radically aristocratic, out heroding Herod in its assertion of Mozarian doctrines, and testing to the full the gullability of the domocratic extremists as well as the monumental patience of the true men of the country.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

A great deal has been said concerning the retirement of Gov. Raymond from the Timer, and the incoming of Thurlow Weed as manager in chief. There is no truth in it nor is Mr. Raymond going to Europe-his family have gone and intend remaining abroad for a year. Mr. Weed's only con-nection with the Times is that of an editorial writer or occasional contributor over his own aignature. Mr. John Swinton, who has been the managing editor since Mr. Wilson's departure, has resigned, and is succeeded by Mr. Morrison, one of the ablest writers on the newspaper press. Gov. Raymond retains the active manage-ment of the paper, and will not permit his Congressional duties to interfere with it. THE TRIBUNE.

Since Mr. Dana's resignation a leaven of discontent has worked divisions in the old Tribune office and changes innumerable have been made, while the most important are yet to be made. The chief conspirators at the time of Mr. Gay's accestion to power were Oliver Johnson, of the Anti-Slavery Standard, Theodore Tilton, of the Independent, and S. H. Gay. Mr. Gay had hardly domesticated himself when he developed any amount of annoying fussiness, and quarrelled with everybody in the office. One by one the workers left him. Frank O'Harson resigned, and is now night editor on the Times; Mr. Webb. the librarian and index-keeper resigned and now occupies a like position on the Times; Bungay, the fancy writer and descriptiveist, wes permitted to retire and has gone west. Mr. England, for years the city editor, couldn't stand the pressure, and left for New Jersey, where he is grow-ing grapes, relieving his labors by waiting in Sam Draper's ante-room, while Sunday reporters and correspondents have refused to write a line under the Gay regime. The conspirators are again at work. ver Johnson finding the Standard a source of neither profit nor power, has left it and is casting about for a place. He and Tilton have put their heads together and with sundry others have succeeded in forming a combination who will turn Mr. Gay into the cold at the next annual meeting, while Mr. Johnson, one of the weakest weak, will take his place. Whether Tilton is hoping to have the position at some future time for himself is a matter of question, as his present field, the Independent affords him ample scope.

The Herald jogs along in its accustomed path. "Young Jim" doesn't develop newspaper talent, but his "Play Bill." under the management of Mr. Ryan, is coining money. The Express difficulty has not yet been settled. Its profits during the last quarter were $29,000. Mr. Clark's counsel stated in court that they had been offered $25,000 for the one sixth owned by Clark, by parties who proposed making a first class evening newspaper. It is generally understood that the active party in the new enterprise was Alex. C. Stephens, for ten years managing editor of the Times, who was maneuvering in behalf of himself and Mr. Howard. The court favored the claim of the Brooks', and for the present the plan has fallen through.

The Citizen, under Col. Halpine, promises well, but unless its pledges are better kept than they were in the first weeks of Halpine's management, success cannot at-

It is very comforting, amid the darkness which shrouds my pre-ent and my future. If there can be com-pensation for such a calamity as has overtaken me, it is to be found in the centiments which you so gracefully express, and, as I believe, sincerely entertain for me. I thank you, brothers, for the great relief your cheering words convey. It has pleased God to afflict my family as no other was ever afflicted. The nature, manner, and extent of the crime which is laid at our door, have crushed me to the very earth. My detestation and shhorrence of the act in all its attributes, are inexpressible; my grief is unutterable, and were it not for the sympathy of friends such as you, it would be intolerable. You bear witness to my loyalty; you know my per-sistent and to some extent successful efforts to elevate our name personally and professionally. For a proof of this, I appeal to the records of the past. For the future, also, I shall struggle on in my retirement, bearing a heavy heart, an oppressed mem-ory, and a wounded name—dreadful burdens—to my welcome grave.

hang myself for saying so, but one hates to see a fine fellow buried alive; come, take a real wake up with us," "Thank you, Ben, but not having been asleep I do not need it. So I'll go home and see my wife"—and thereat Mark turned a resolute footstep homeward, as a well trained husband ought, "Now," says one of our readers, "who was Mark Meriden?"

You would not have asked, good reader, if you had lived in the town ofwhen his name first appeared on the outside of one of its most fashionable shops -Mark Meriden-surrounded by those waying insignia of grace and fashion that young belles need to have their eyes turned off from beholding. Everything in the tasteful establishment told of well arranged business, and Mark himself, the cle of costume, quick, attentive, polite, was every day to be seen there winning golden opinions from all. Mark's shop became the resort of high tone-the fashionable exchange, the promenade of beauty and wealth, who came there to be enghtened as to the ways and means of disposing of their surplus revenue, to see

So attentive, polite and considerate was Mark, so bright his eyes, so unexceptionable his whiskers, that it might have proved a dangerous resort for the ladies had not a pretty house going up in the neighborhood, been reported the future residence of an already elected Mrs. Meriden, and in a few months, the house being finished and neatly furnished, received a very pretty lady who called herself to that effect. She was as truly refined and lovely a woman as ever formed the centre flower in a domestic boquet, and Mark might justly be pardoned for having been fortunate enough to secure her.

Mark had an extensive circle of busines and pleasure acquaintances, for he had been one of the sociable, companionable sort, whose money generally found its way out of his pockets in very fair proportion to the rate it came in. In short, he was given to clubs, oyster suppers, and now and then a wine party, and various other social privileges for elevating one's apirit and depressing one's cash, that abound among enlightened communities.

But, nevertheless, at the bottom Mark's head, there was a very substantial stratum of a certain quality called common sense, which, although it was never set down in any chart of phrenology, may very justly be called a faculty, and one, too, which makes a very striking difference among people as the world goes. In consequence of being thus constituted, Mark, when he found himself in love and engaged to a very pretty girl, began to reflect with more than ordinary seriousness on his habits, ways and manner of life He also took an accurate survey of his business, formed an average estimate of his future income on the soberest probabili-He also provided himself with a small account book with which he intended to live in habits of very close ac quaintance, and in this book he designed to note down all the savings consequent upon the retrenching of certain little extras, before alluded to, in which he had been in the habit of pretty freely indulging himself.

Upon the present occasion it had eas him something of an effort to say no, for Mark was one of your easy, "clever fellows," to whom the enunciation of this litthe sylable causes as much trouble as all he; I know you hate figures, but just for the gutturals of the German. However, when he came in sight of his parlor winlows, through which a bright fire was shining—when he entered and found the elean, glowing hearth, and the easy chair drawn up in front, and a pair of embroid-ered slippers waiting for him quite at their leisure, and above all, when he read the quick glance of welcome in a pair of very bright eyes, Mark forgot all about Ben Sanford and all batchelor friends and allurements whatever, and thought himself the happiest fellow on earth. The evening passed off rapidly by the help of music, reading and the little small talk of which newly married people generally find a supply, and the next morning found Mark at early business hours with as steady a hand and cool a head as if there had been no such thing as bachelor frolics in existence.

Late in the forenoon Ben Sanford loung ed in to ogle a few ladies, and, above all, to rally Mark on losing the fun of the vening before.

"Upon my word, Mark," he began, we must have you put up for Selectman, you are becoming so extremely ancient and venerable in your ways—however you are to be excused," he added, "circumstances considered-female influence! Well, it's a fine affair, this marriage!"
"Better try it, Mr. Sanford," said

bright eaucy girl, who with her laughing companions were standing by while Ben was speaking. " Ah, madam, the wherewithal," said

Ben, rolling up his eyes tragically. "If some cleverold fellow would be so obliging as to die now, and leave me a few thou sand, then, ladies, you should see! "But speaking of money," said Mark, when he saw the ladies busy over some laces he had thrown on the counter, "what did your glorious fun cost you?" "Pho! only a ten dollar bill, nothing in my purse, you know."

"Nothing in the purse?—not an uncom-

"Oh! hang it all," said Ben, "its so: I can get no remedy for this consumption of the purse, as Falstaff says; however, the world owes me a living, and 50 good morning."

Ben Sanford was just one of that class of men of whom report goes that they can do anything they please, and who consider this point so well established that they do not consider it necessary to illustrate it by doing anything. He was a lawyer of tal-ent, and would have had an extensive run of business had he not been one of the of resort, where his handsome person and credit for the baby.

various social accomplishments secured to him a welcome reception. Ben had some down into an old grandfather before your time a pretty fife's a pretty thing, Mark, and a pretty bouse is a pretty thing—but bang it I one must have a little of life."

Mark Meriden stood at his desk, giving last look at his book at h forgetting that the world can sometimes poor a paymaster as the most fashionable young gentleman.

But to return to Mark: When he had settled his accounts at night, he took from a pigeon hole in his deak the little book. aforenamed, and entered as follows: - "To one real wake up, $10," which being done he looked his desk, and returned once more to Mrs. Meridan.

Days flew on, and the shop of Mark became increasingly popular, and still from time to time he was assailed by the kind of temptation we have described. Now it was "Mark, my dear old fellow, do join us in a trip to G-'s"-and now, "come my old boy, let us have a spree at F-s;" and, at last, turning to Ben, said_"I now it was the club, now the oyster supper-but still Mark was invincible, and, as one or another gaily recounted the history of the scene, he silently committed the amount of the expense to his book. Yet was not Mark cynical or unsocial. His refusals, though so firm, were invariably good natured, and though he could not be drawn abroad, yet he was unquestionably open-handed in his own home. No house nad so warm a welcome—no dinner table could be more bountiful or more freely open for the behoof of all gentlemen of the dinning-out order-no ten table presented more unexceptionable tonst, and no evening lounge was more easy, home-like and cheerful, than on sofas in the snug parlors of Mark Meriden. They also gave even-ing parties, where all was brilliant, tasteful and well ordered; and, in fine, notwithstanding his short comings, Mark was set down as a fine open-handed fellow, af-

At the end of the year, Mark cast up the account in his little book, and was mightily astonished at it, for, with all his ideas of the powers of numbers, he had no idea that the twos, fives, and tens, and arranged business, and Mark himself, the which on greater or small occasions had mirror of fashion. faultless in every artifound their way into his columns, would amount up to a sum so considerable. Mark looked about him-his business machinery moving in exact touch and time -his house, where was there a prettier one '-where a place more replete with every home drawing comfort? he lost anything in pleasure the year past? Mark thought not, and therefore as he walked homeward, he stopped into the book-sellers and ordered some books of superh engravings for Mrs. Meridan, and spoke to a gardener to send some elegant lowering exotice for which he had heard her express an admiration some evenings before.

That same evening came in Ben San-ford, as he expressed it "in the depths of indigo," for the young gentlemen whose worldly matters invariably go on wrong end foremost will sometimes be found in this condition, however exuberant may be their stock of animal spirits. "Pray, Ben, what is the matter?" said

Mark kindly, as the latter stretched himself at length in an arm chair, groaning audibly.

"O, a bilious attack—Mark!—shoema-kers' bills, tailors' bills—boarding-house bills all sent in for new year's presentshang 'em all.!"

Mark was silent for a few moments, and Ben continued, "Confound it, Mark! what's the sense of living, if a fellow is to be so very poor! Here you, Mark, born in the same town with me, and younger than I by some two years-you have a house, as snug, as cozy, and comfortable as man need ask-a wife like an angel-peace and plenty by the bushel, and all comes of naving a good run of luck in the money line"-and Ben kicked hisslippers against the andiron most energetically "What has become of Emily P.

"Poor soul!" said Ben, "there she is yet, with all sweetness and patience, waiting until such a luckless scapegrace as I can give her a home and a husband. wish to my soul, for her sake, I could afford to be married, and have a home of elbow, slip-shod life." "Why don't you get married?" said

"Why don't I? to be sure—use my tailors bills for fuel, and my board bill for butter-hey? Would you recommend a poor girl to try me, Mark-all things considered? " said Ben bitterly.

Mark reflected awhile in silence, and then drew out his book his little book to which we have before alluded. "Just look at this account, Ben," once." Ben glanced at it impatiently—laughed when he read over the first two or three items, but his face lengthened as he proceeded, and Mark detected a sort of whistle of astonishment as he read the sum

"Well, Mark!" he exclaimed, "what a very old gentlemanly, considerate trick is this of yours—to sit behind your curtain so coolly noting down the "cost and come all our little frolics-really it is most edifying! How much you must have enjoyed your superior discretion and fore-thought," and Ben laughed, but not with his usual glee.

"Nay, you mistake," said Mark. kept this account merely to see what I had been in the habit of spending myself, and as you and I have been always hand and glove in everything, it answers equally for you. It was only yesterday that I summed up the account, and I assure you the result surprised myself; and now Ben, the sum here set down, and as much more as you please, is freely at your disposal, to clear off old scores for the year, provided you will accept with it this little book as a new year's gift, and use it one twelve months as I have done; and if at the end of that time, you are not ready to introduce me to Mrs. Sanford, I am much mistaken."

Ben grasped his friend's hand-but just then the entrance of Mrs. Meriden prevented his reply-Mark, however, saw with satisfaction that he put the book carefully in his vest pocket, and buttoning up his coat with the air of a man who is buttoning up a new resolution.

When they parted for the night Mark said, with a smile: "In case of bilious attacks, you know where to send for medicine" Ben answered only by a fervent grasp of the hand, for his throat felt too full for him to answer.

Mark Meriden's book answered the purpose admirably. In less than two years Ben. Sanford was the most popular lawyer mon incident after these occasions," said in -, and as steady a householder as you would wish to see. In conclusion, we will ask our lady readers their opinion on one point, and it is If Mrs. Meriden had been a woman who understood what is called "catching better than securing a husband -if she had never curled her hair except for company, and thought it a degradation to know how to keep a house comfortable, would all these things have happened? The English papers are noting the heavy emigration from the mining districts of that country to this, and recognizing it as of the nature of a public calamity. The skilled and comparatively independent miners of South Wales, where there are immense treasures of iron, copper and coal, are coming here in greater strength than ever before. "It is beginning," says the London Times, "to be a frequent occurrence for forty or fifty hands to leave at every pay-day from the principal iron and coal works of the district." This is the most valuable class of emigrants that reach our shores and we may well be glad to welcome them to a free country.

A MEETING of all the Bishops of the M. ties, and determined to live a little even within that. The object of the meeting we presume to be to consider appropriate measures for a reunion of the churches North and South. Slavery sundered the churches lors bills for fuel, and my board bill for twenty-five years ago. That being out of house rent, and my shoe bill for bread and the way, the wall of partition has been taken down, and a reunion is possible.

As the schism in the church was then considered the significant prelude of a political separation, its healing would be hailed as a good omen of a substantial political and civil reunion.

> WHEN Sherman's " boys " went through Orangeburg, S. C., tearing up the rail road, they bent the rails so as to read U. S. and laid the two letters side by side for rebel reading and interpretation. is supposed many rebels then, for the first time, learned their letters.

A CELEBRATED wit was asked why he did not marry a young lady to whom he was much attached. "I know not," he replied, "except the great regard we have for each other."

CITY BOTICES.

THE CULTIVATOR OF CORN.-The large amount of corn to be planted this season, renders it necessary for the producer to have some improved implement for its cultivation. To meet this demand, I am now building " The Badger State" gig corn planter. After six months experimenting with different models, we have one which we are willing should be put to the test, and that it should stand or fall on its own merits. A lengthy description does not seem to be necessary. We will simply say that we are confident it will perform all that any cultivator will, and all that any farmer will require of it. It has six shovels, or four, as desired. The shovels are so arranged as to cultivate wide or narrow shallow or deep; and they all have a very easy side motion. To say that they are made under the supervision of G. F. Lane, is a sufficient guarantee that they will be well made. In fact, they will be warranted in every respect.

The Badger State gig cultivator will be old this season at $50 at the shop. Call and see it at the shop one block south of the Hyatt House.

SEWING-MACHINES .- Of the many inventions and improvements of sewing-maanti-elavery society, at Cooper Institute, chines none have roughtisfactorily stood the spoke as follows on the execution of leading toget of sine and service as Grover & Baker's. They have taken the highest premiums at the terent States; they have, moreover, received the warmreading the newspaper, and the negro on the other, holding the ballot, and each standing on his own farm, he was not have had opportunities to compare the different standing of Jeff Davis—not if he was multiever used the machines, and those who ferent styles of machines, generally prefer Grover & Baker's to any other. They do the work neatly and well, do not get out of order, and are readily adapted to any kind of sewing. Morrell's Electra Magnetic Fluid. It has been a settled scientific fact that disease is the result of the disturbance of the magnetic forces of the system. That being the case, the natural conclusion would necessarily be, that that which will restore a perfect circulation must be a spe cific. This the electra magnetic fluid of fects, on applying it simply to the surface. Its powers are truly marvelous. It is indicated in all cases when there is a lack of magnetic circulation, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, palsy, bronchitis, con-sumption, stiff limbs, swelled joints, spasms, cramp, fits, deafness, sore eyes, scrofula, syphilis, cancers, white swelling, prolapsus and other female diseases, &c. Morrell's Magnet Salve is highly recommended for the cure of cuts, bruises, old sores and burns. If applied to a burn immediately, it will stop it from blistering, and take out thr fire at once.

CLOTHES WRINGER

Miscellaneous.

The only Wringer in use that is fastened to a tub by the Patent CURVED CLAMP,

Which has an equal bearing on the tult the whole length of the Wringer, while all other Wringers are merely fastened to a SINGLE STAVE at each end. The Curred Clamp not only affords the most secure fastening of any in use, but it does not strain the tub like all other methods of fastenings. A child eight years old can securely fasten the Wringer to any size TUB, POUNDING BARREL OR BOX.

The Rollers are fastened to the shaft under HALEY'S PATENT, which is acknowledged to be the

The shaft being covered with cement and closely wound with strong twine, prevents the rubber from coming in contact with the shaft. If the rubber is allowed to come in contact with the shaft, the sulphur in the rubber acting on the iron soon causes the rubber to become loose, which renders the Wringer useless. This is entirely overcome by using Haley's manner of fastening, which not only prevents the Rollers from becoming loose on the shaft, but renders the use of Cog Wikeels (used on some Wringers) entirely unnecessary. Wringers with cog wheels Tran a cause part part manner of a Wringer should prove by trial before purchasing one with cog wheels. The Rollers need no adjusting to wring ordinary clothing, but to wring very heavy articles, they can be adjusted as desired, which saves much hard labor, and straining of the Wringer.

The Rollers turn in boxes of hard maple wood, which are boiled in tallow, consequently need no oiling; while Rollers that turn on iron soon rust, which canse them to turn very hard unless frequently oiled. Oil has a very bad effect on the rubber.

There is no iron about the Wringer that can come in contact with stricles being wrung. Besides saving much hard labor, the Wringer will accompany for itself in the saving of clothing.

Having been so successful in selling these, Wringers, at on ever hare one arrenave, I invite competition, and desire any one purchasings "Champion Wringer," to test it with others, and if found surgators to all others, keep it—if inspens to any, return it, and the money will be refunded if returned within one month.

NERVINE COMPOUND

A most delightful EXHLIERANT CONFECTION IZED, and has been the theme of song and story among the Persians, Arabians and Assyrians.

It is a remedy that ought to be in every House on account of its harmlessness and potency; and above all, because of its exceeding cheapness. It is the cheapest remedy in the world. Colds readily yield toit.

The writer, the speaker, the student and the business man, under its influence, seem to gather a new inspiration and new energy, a readiness and keenness of perception unknown before. No Clergyman, Actor, Singer, Lawyer, or in fact any one should be without it Gen. Grant says, "It is of great value for the wounded and feeble, and that it is harmless."

Maj. Gen Mitteeld, the celebrated Astornomer says the liasheesh Candy helped him when all other remedies sailed to relieve him, and that it is an elegant compound The celebrated Dr. Most of New York says the true medicinal virtues of the Hasheesh Candy are very great; much greater than yet appears. I could wish that a remedy so potent for good as it is were more generally in use.

NO BREAKING OF NEEDLES.

The blate of the needle is less than % of an inch long, and is atracight. It is less than half the length of other machine needles, many of which are curred, therefore more easily bent or broken—a great source of annoyance, expense and trouble. The Hemmer and Feller can never be set wrong. Any one may adjust them in the Sark. The hem may boof any width. No other hemmer or feller is like this. It turns the hem on the right or upper side, as you want it. IT WILL NOT DROP STITCHES;

As the needle is always set right, the blade short an straight does not vibrate, like longer ones.

Wilcox & Gibbs Sewing Machine Is run by steams at 4000 stilches per minute—other machines only at 400 to 1200, with safety. They are manufactured with MATHEMATICAL PRECISIC, N. Hence each part is interchangeable, and can " practily placed in case of accident.
